

PERMISSION FOR AAPS TO USE HANDOUT MATERIALS AT WORKSHOPS AND SHORT COURSES

The American Association of Pharmaceutical Scientists (“AAPS”) fulfills its mission to educate and inform scientists and the public in part through presentations at AAPS sponsored workshops and short courses. You are scheduled to make a presentation entitled _____ at the AAPS workshop/short course on _____[date].

By signing this agreement, you grant permission to AAPS to copy and distribute your handout materials and to audio or videotape your presentation for scientific and educational purposes, and to reproduce, distribute and sell the audio/videotapes, transcripts, handouts, related materials, and your comments used or made during the presentation. This also gives AAPS the right to publish such materials in AAPS publications, which may be published or distributed in various print or electronic media (such as CD-ROM or via the web). Please understand that this permission is non-exclusive and does not constitute a transfer of copyright, meaning that you and/or your employer do not give up any rights; for example, you are not prevented from otherwise publishing your comments or the information you presented in any way.

Because AAPS seeks to have the most recent work presented at its meetings, some of the work you have presented may not yet have been published in a peer-reviewed journal. Recognizing that untimely publication may make publication as original research more difficult, you are invited to identify such material and indicate that it be withheld from publication with your handouts. Please also identify any material that you do not have permission to copy, and it will also be withheld from publication.

Your acceptance of this agreement confirms that you are the sole author, unless you indicate otherwise. You also give permission to AAPS to use your name, likeness (photograph) and brief biosketch solely for the purpose of marketing any publications of the materials described above. You understand that you will not receive royalties or other compensation from the use of these materials by AAPS.

Your signature below indicates acceptance of this agreement.
